Want soaring Pagerank? How about in 200 days?

Then read on!

BRIEF INTRO. PageRank is google's valuation of your website. Your pagerank comes pegged on a scale from 0 to 10.

Uh- okay... so what?

Let's make it so easy that even your cat would mewl.

Think of Pagerank like real estate pricing. The higher your site ranks on that scale, the more valuable it is in Google's eyes. You, the webmaster, enjoy explosive benefits the greater your pagerank gets: your site gets indexed more often, you appear in the top ten placements and people gleefully kill each other to advertise their site on yours. To the tune of thousands of greenbacks a month.

Bottomline: websites of considerable persuasion and influence boast high pagerank. You want a high pagerank so you dominate search engine rankings AND so you can sell advertising slots. Or, you can sell these websites. (A pagerank 7 domain can sell for $5000 to $10000)

Reality Check

If your site has less than a Pagerank 4, you're a nobody. Jump a notch up. Pagerank 5 means you're a rising hotshot. Folks would pay $30 a month to place a link on your site.

Pagerank 6 means you're almost a god. Not only would you rank in the top ten search engine rankings for chosen keywords, you'd rake in about $50 per site per month in ad revenue. Magic begins at Pagerank 7. Own such a domain and people beg to pay you $100+ per month to advertise on your site. Do that for quick cash, or you can sell the domain for thousands of dollars.

Are you mewling like a cat yet? Oops- watch that drool!

Now that that's out of the way, let's hunker down to getting you a Pagerank 7 in 200 days.

CREATING A SITE OF MASSIVE INFLUENCE

1) Raid a few webhosts that allow you to buy domains for cheap. I'd recommend godaddy.com or doteasy.com Purchase at least 40 domains across different C Class IPs. (Google loves multiple IPs)

The .info , .mobi and .biz variety go for a dime a dozen. Register them and build up a single page on each one. All in all, this should cost you $150. Now fill the pages with quality content. No scraped info or you'll get deindexed. Your bucks would go down the drain faster than cash at a casino. Hire a ghostwriter if you must. They'll charge $4 an article.

Once done, deploy live rss feed from rss-info.com into each of the sites you created. I suggest using the PHP feed and streaming in at least targeted 10 RSS articles. This keeps your 40 domains fresh and updated- something search engines love. Imagine- your sites auto update everyday! And it's totally white hat!

2) Create backlinks to each of these sites from domains that wield extremely high pagerank. It's easy to accomplish with Netscape.com and NewsVine.com. Now before you get all excited, understand that this tactic will work if you judiciously pick profitable tags.

The tag 'business' ranks a whopper of a pagerank 7 at netscape. (<http://www.netscape.com/tag/business>). Listing your 40 domains under this directory gets an instant pagerank 7 backlink! The higher the backlinks, the higher the pagerank your 40 sites achieve: a pagerank 7 site linking to you transforms you into a pagerank 3 or 4!

3) Amp the power. List your domains at DMOZ, Yahoo Directory, iwebtool.com and Relmaxtop.com You'll garner at least a Pagerank 4 backlink from each site. That's more PR juice for you. Forget listing your site in 1000 directories that have low pagerank. Getting backlinks from PR0 sites add no value to your PR campaign.

4) Post meaningful comments on one or two blogs listed here: courtneytuttle.com/blogs-that-follow/ These blogs have the NoFollow attribute disabled, allowing you to suck in more PR to each of your domains.

5) Post meaningful comments on mattcuts.com, pearsonified.com and scobleizer.com. Google ranks these sites at pagerank 8+. If your sensible comment is approved, you get more rank boosting. Can you see where we are getting at? You are draining massive flows of PR power into your 40 domains!

6) Use this string in google search box to find high credibility .edu blogs where you can get quick backlinks from: [[site:.edu inurl:blog "post a comment" -"comments closed" -"you must be logged in" "Your-Key-Word"]] Rationale? With this tactic, you hunt down .edu blogs that allow you to post comments on. If your link appears on a .edu domain, Google accords you sweeping respect and a healthy PR boost. Finding .edu blogs, such as at Harvard.edu and posting on them, gives you credibility. In spades. Be safe. Ensure you write MEANINGFUL comments on these .edu sites, or I'll disown you and send the Italian Mafia to kick your arse and sink you in the Ganges.

7) Wait for the next PageRank update. Twiddle your thumbs and get fat on some MacDonalds quarterpounders to pass the time.

🤪 Et Voila! After the next update, the Google Toolbar will indicate that ALL your 40 sites have achieved a shiny PageRank 4 or 5. Man, wasn't that easy?? (FYI, google updates pagerank every three months or so)

9) Now that your sites wield considerable persuasive influence, I want you to create three new domains and have all original 40 sites link to these. This is important: the 40 sites should link to nowhere else except these three new domains. Violate this rule and you dilute the PR power of the 40 sites.

10) Wait for the next pagerank update and BAM! The three new domains now flex a Pagerank 5! Hallelujah!! But wait. You don't want a lousy 5. You want at least a Pagerank Seven. So what you do is to create two new domains and have the three new Pagerank 5s link to that.

11) Wait again. (do you get the pattern here?) Suck on some fries. Get more girlfriends. Take up racing. Buy a Prada. Then at the next pagerank update, the Google Tool Bar will bring you news that will wet your pants:
GOODGRACIOUSGLORIOUSGOD! The two new domains are now Pagerank 6!!

But wait. We're not done yet. I want you to create a new domain. And guess what? I want you to link the two Pagerank 6 sites to your new domain.

12) Wait again. Nuninuninu. By now you should have 10 girlfriends and drag a nice paunch from all those quarterpounders. Give it 2 months. After the next pagerank update, your last domain should now be a gloriously persuasive Pagerank 7. Ahh. Now you can kick back and relax. Because with this single website, any other website you link to will be transformed into an instant Pagerank 6. But be warned, if you use this Pagerank 7 site to link to more than 3 sites, power is lost. Instead of creating PR6 domains, you will create PR5 or PR4 domains.

So What's in It for You?

Everyone knows that Pagerank 7 domains command unbelievable advertising power.

- You can sell advertising slots on the new domain for $80 to $100 each.
- You can create new Page Rank 6 websites by simply linking to them from your Pagerank 7 site.
- You can sell the site for $10000 and create a new one.

So what you do from here...?

Well, I leave it to your imagination.

Disclaimer. Well actually its an apology. I promised you a Pagerank 7 in 200 days? Actually, make it more like 365 days because that's how long it would take google to go through all those updates.

A Little on the Technical Side

It takes about 40 Pagerank 3 or 4 sites to produce a Pagerank 5 site, granted that each of the 40 sites do not link to more than three external sites.

It takes about three Pagerank 5 sites to create a single Pagerank 6 site... if these page rank 5 sites do not link to more than two external sites.

It takes about two Pagerank 6 sites to create a Pagerank 7 site if these Pagerank 6 sites do not link to more than one external site.

Keep these in mind. If you go wild and link all over the place, your site rankings drop rapidly. I promise you that.

That will always be my secret. I run 4 pagerank 7 sites and use Wordclouds or Tagpage scripts to monetize the sites. These Pagerank 7 sites draw power from 40 secret domains spread across hosts like Doteasy.com, Godaddy.com, Netfirms.com and Angelfire.

After two successful years of passive income from these PR7 sites, I decided to share exactly how I did it with you fine fellows.
